Two previously discussed matters approved Monday night

Elba Council votes to move forward with centralized dispatch and renovations of building for Elba Chamber

by Linda Hodge, Editor

The Elba City Council made two decisions Monday evening, April 24, during its second regular bi-monthly meeting for April regarding matters that had been previously discussed on several different occasions. By ordinance, the Elba City Council meets every second and fourth Monday evening of each month unless otherwise approved by vote of the council.

The first matter decided was to move to centralized 911 dispatch services with Coffee County overseeing the services. This will move the dispatch services from the Elba Police Department to a centralized location at the county complex in New Brockton where Coffee County will be the overseer for emergency services [fire, medical, police] for the county, and municipalities of Elba, New Brockton, and Kinston).

The matter had been discussed extensively at the council's previous meeting two weeks prior, and council members were provided contract documents to review before this week's meeting.

After a motion and second were made, council members unanimously voted Monday night during their regular meeting time to enter into contract with Coffee County for centralized dispatch services.

After the city council approval of the matter,

Coffee County administrator Rod Morgan said this

ZC's Padgett one of two anglers in Alabama selected for Bassmasters High School All-State Fishing Team

Fifty-two of the most outstanding high school anglers from across the United States have been named to the 2023 BASSMASTER High School All-State Fishing Team presented by Academy Sports & Outdoors.

The students were selected for the honor based on their success in bass tournament competition, academic achievement, and leadership in conservation and community service. To be considered for the All-State Fishing Team, a student must have been nominated by a parent, coach, teacher or other school official. Students enrolled in grades 10-12 with a current-year grade point average of 2.5 or higher were eligible.

B.A.S.S. received over 300 nominations from across the nation. From these, judges selected 52 student anglers from 30 states to make the All-State Fishing Team. Additionally, 42 students received Honorable Mentions recognizing them for their tournament success as well as community service and academic achievement.

On Tuesday, April 18, Avery Padgett, a senior angler from Zion Chapel High School in Jack, Ala., received an email from Bassmaster All-State Team congratulating him for having been selected as a mem-

From Elba Board of Education meeting

Brian Weeks retiring after 33 years of teaching at Elba High

by Linda Hodge, Editor

It was with great reluctance Tuesday evening, April 18, that Elba City Schools' superintendent Chris Moseley presented a letter of retirement before the school board for approval, but Moseley said like it or not the time had come for longtime educator Brian Weeks to retire.

Moseley said it was selfish on his part as superintendent of the school system to not want to see Weeks go, but he also noted it was a retirement well-earned and deserved.

Board members agreed with their superintendent but voted unanimously to accept the retirement of Elba High School science teacher Brian Weeks at the end of the school year.

Elba High School principal Wynn Grimes said Weeks will retire with a total of 34 years teaching, and 33 of those years were spent at Elba.

"I don't think you can ever replace a Brian Weeks, but we will be tasked now with filling the teaching position he has held for more than three decades," Grimes said. "Mr. Weeks has been a fantastic teacher and great asset for this school."

Grimes, himself, has been at Elba High School for 28 years now. He said he began his teaching/coaching career from the junior high hall working alongside Weeks where a special bond was formed between the two educators.

"Every student he has taught has enjoyed being in his classroom," Grimes said. "I don't think anyone has ever had a bad thing to say about Coach Weeks. He is just a phenomenal person."

Grimes said Elba High School and Elba City Schools as a whole wish Coach Weeks well in his upcoming retirement.

"It is definitely well-deserved," Grimes said. "We wish only the best for Coach Weeks and his family in their future endeavors, but he will certainly be

"It is not enough to win a war; it is more important to organize the peace." - Aristotle

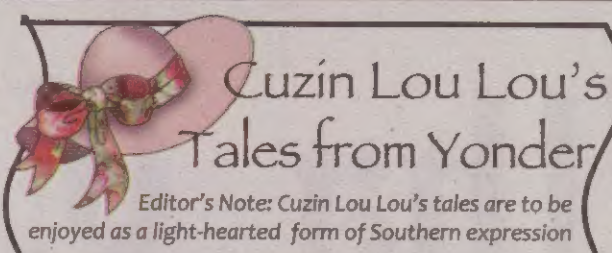

National politics are shaping up to present United States voters with a rerun of the last presidential election. Former President Donald Trump has earlier announced his official run for the office he lost in the last election while President Joe Biden, who defeated Trump in their one-on-one national election, this week did the long-expected thing and announced he was running for re-election. This race might be a muted event as Fox News, which doubled down on Trump support in the last several years just settled a huge multi-million dollar lawsuit over claims of false reporting the vote counts and results of the last election. Fox then this week fired Reporter Tucker Carlson, their loudest proponent of these election charges.

The mind set of those involved in this mass shooting epidemic is puzzling to many (maybe most) of us. It is not just in the US, but we are seeing worldwide reports of copycat shootings. Each probably has some different motivation but personally nothing in our wildest imagination justifies mass shootings. The frightening part of all this is that society is becoming hardened to these events and until one happens at home, or nearby, citizens move on with a shrug of the shoulders after scanning the headlines. Gun control probably will not solve the issue, as those distorted minds wanting to can spend months plotting and seeking out an illegal gun to carry out their mission. So - "What is the answer?" We don't know but are willing to support almost anything that will get control of this tragic movement.

For years we have heard criticism of U. S. Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas while others have praised him. In fact, a lady who was in Journalism classes with our daughter at the University of Alabama covered the Supreme Court for a TV network for several years and wrote a very detailed (and positive) book on Thomas. We have the book and probably need to re-read it to see if we see any 'holes' in her reporting. In recent months it is the critics who are controlling the talk. As the tempo picked up it was talk of his wife and her possible intervention into the Donald Trump January 6 debates and accusations (thus wrongly influencing his actions). Of late there have been reports of him taking 'free' vacations on the fancy boats of millionaires for years and not reporting this on his annual disclosure statements. (He has denied there is a requirement to report these trips). Now someone has uncovered information that he has accepted 'gifts' from at least one person with ties to a company with a case before the Supreme Court! This last claim should be a no-no in any court and such reports will further undermine the nation's already declining trust in the national court system. Our suggestion to Justice Thomas is to admit a lapse in judgement and/or resign from this lifetime term on the Supreme Court.

Be safe, wear your mask when appropriate, social distance, wash your hands AND get the shot(s) and/or boosters (the newest one)!

Cuzin Lou Lou was smiling from ear-to-ear last Sunday while Sister, on the other hand, was shaking her head in disbelief...the reason behind it all was the Lou 2! It was a beautiful Spring-day with temps in the low 80's and clear skies, and Lou Lou convinced Sister to take a ride in the Jeep with the top down! The two ventured off to a nearby city to grab a bite to eat for lunch and just enjoy the day with a leisure ride.

Following their lunch, they made trip through the drive-thru of Starbucks to grab a couple of iced lattes - Sister got a good doctor report last week, so she decided to splurge and enjoy a beverage she no longer gets to have on a regular basis.

Lou Lou pulled up to the drive-thru window, and the nice young lady working the window made Lou Lou's day! "Your Jeep is pretty cool," said the sweet worker.

"Thanks!" replied a gleeful Lou Lou.

Sister said not a word...at that moment.

After they received their lattes, and Lou Lou drove away from the drive-thru, she turned to look over at Sister with a big smile on her face. Sister was already shaking her head, and before Lou Lou could say a word, she said, "Lord, help us! That girl has no idea what she just did! Your head just doubled in size!"

What in the name of Yonder?!?!

Well...actually...Sister was probably correct! It absolutely made Lou Lou's day to have a stranger compliment

Lou 2!!

Lou Lou's smile stayed on her face all the way back to the Yonder gang's house. She even made a few extra turns here and there to prolong the trip back home just so she could keep enjoying the Sunday drive in Lou 2 with the top down!

Sister even made a photo of Lou Lou driving and captioned it with, "It only takes driving her Jeep and Starbucks to make her happy!"

She's not wrong!! Now, if only Lou Lou could convince Sister to have the same love for Lou 2 as she does...then, all would be right in Lou Lou's world.

She's working on it! Stay tuned.

Until next time...God Bless and Keep Smiling!

next step would be for the Coffee County Commission to consider the matter at its next regular meeting, which will be Monday, May 8th.

Also, during Monday evening's meeting, Mayor Tom Maddox said the city had received a price quote from Diversified Contracting of Opp, Ala. for renovations of the 'old dime store' building, located on the square on Davis Street to renovate one-half of that building to house the Elba Chamber of Commerce office.

Several months ago, the city bid the renovation project, but no bids were submitted. When no bids were received, that opened the project for the city to solicit quotes to negotiate individually with contractors to get the work done.

Maddox said the city had been able to get one other quote on the project, but it was much higher than funds available. He said the quote/proposal from Diversified Contracting was much more in-line with funding at just under $200,000 for the renovations.

Council members voted unanimously to approve entering into an agreement with Diversified to get the building renovated for the Elba Chamber's new permanent office.

Council member Jane Brunson asked who from the city would be overseeing the renovations project for the city, and city clerk Sally Bane said it would be code enforcement officer Bryson Dear.

Also during Monday night's council meeting, several board reappointments were approved.

Carol Jackson was reappointed to the South Central Alabama Mental Health Board; Millie McCollough and Trey Gary were each reappointed to the Elba Redevelopment Authority; and Mary Helen Robinson was reappointed to the Zoning Board of Adjustments.

The next Elba City Council meeting is set for Monday, May 8, at 5:30 p.m. at Elba City Hall. All meetings are open to the public.

Reactions to a Spouse's Death

If your husband or wife has died, you will probably experience some of the common symptoms of grief. You may find yourself denying at first that your spouse has died. Later, you may feel numb or like a spectator watching what's going on. This is nature's way of protecting you, of insulating you from what is happening so you can adjust.

You may also find yourself filled with anger. You may feel angry at the doctors or nurses who couldn't save your spouse, at the funeral director - even God. You may feel angry at your spouse for leaving you and then feel guilty for this anger.

You may find yourself feeling guilty for a number of reasons. It is common for the bereaved to feel guilty simply for being alive. You may believe you somehow should have prevented the death or been present to say good-bye. Because relationships are never perfect, you were bound to have had some disagreements with your spouse. Now you may feel guilty for those arguments or believe you should have been a "better" husband or wife.

The mental strain of grief can take a physical toll as well. It's not unusual for the bereaved to lose weight, have difficulty sleeping, become irritable or listless, or feel short of breath. Grief has even been known to cause hair loss.

Husbands and wives who have lost a spouse frequently become preoccupied with the person who died. You may think about your spouse constantly, recreate the circumstances of the death over and over in your mind, or have dreams or nightmares about him or her. You may even think you see or hear your spouse.

Many people are surprised and frightened by the intensity of these reactions. "Grief feels like craziness to the person who's undergoing it," explains Therese Rando, a psychologist. Dr. Rando says it is important to realize that, bizarre as they may seem, these reactions are normal. Grieving is a natural, though incredibly difficult, process. Recognizing grief can affect you in many ways and it can change from day to day is one of the first steps to beginning the healing process.

Thar She Blows!

Growing up in the South some things are just inevitable. Grits come to be accepted as a good side dish with any meal, and sooner or later everybody goes fishing. I know I'll never forget my first fishing trip. I honestly don't remember how many fish were caught that day, but I will always remember the impact that day had on the rest of my life.

L.T. Ward was one of my dad's best friends. Dad and L.T. had grown up together, gone to college together, and now they lived down the street from each other. Our families would occasionally have cookouts or go out to eat, but the Wards were big Auburn fans, so naturally we couldn't do too much with them. However, they were fun people to be with and when they invited us to spend a day at the lake with them we were excited to go.

To my six-year-old mind it seemed like a half day's drive to get to Walnut lake, when in reality it was only about twenty minutes. Walnut lake was not a large lake, just a really big pond with eight or ten houses around it and a beautiful view of Interstate 20/59 on the north end. But to me it was Lake Superior and there were fish to be caught.

The day was perfect, the temperature was cool, the water was clear, and the fish were practically jumping onto the bank. Well anyway, it was a nice day. While Dad and Mr. Ward were busy getting the fishing gear ready, Mom and Mrs. Ward were busy getting things ready for the fish fry we would have later I was busy falling in the lake. Since it was too cool to swim and we were just going to fish we hadn't brought any extra clothes. I had the choice of roughing it out until my clothes dried or hypothermia set in or I could wear some of Tim Ward's clothes. Tim was a good bit bigger than me and his clothes were some what large on me, but they were dry and mine weren't. So I made do.

After I dried off and changed my cloth's, it was time to fish. Dad put a worm on my hook and I was ready to go. I can only imagine what I must have looked like with clothes that were twice my size and that long cane pole sticking out over the water. Whatever I looked like, it must have been scaring the fish away because I wasn't catching anything and I had already been fishing five minutes. I watched as the others were catching fish. It just didn't make any sense. No matter how many times I checked my hook, or hit the water with my rod tip, or threw rocks in the water to simulate smaller fish jumping, I just couldn't catch any fish.

Finally, I got tired and put my pole down on the ground. I sat down and watched everybody else having fun. Just as I had decided that I was not destined to be a fisherman, it happened. My pole began to move by itself toward the lake as if some unseen creature were trying to snatch it under the water. Instincts told me to grab the pole and yank, so I did. As I yanked for all I was worth, there was a slight resistance, and then suddenly from the murky depths the creature appeared hurtling toward my face.

The blue gill brim stopped about three inches from my face and just hung there in mid-air, wiggling violently. I had caught my first fish! As I stood there and realized what had happened, I did what any red blooded American six year old who had caught his first fish would have done: I dropped the pole and ran like crazy.

I don't remember much about the rest of that day, except that I was changed forever. I would never go fishing without a change of clothes again, and I would be a fisherman for the rest of my life. Something deep inside had been ignited. It would always be a part of me.

Jesus had the same affect on some Jewish fisherman one day beside the Sea of Galilee. "Come, follow me," Jesus said, "and I will make you fishers of men."

At once they left their nets and followed him. (Mark 1:17-18) Jesus had ignited something deep within Peter and Andrew. They knew life would never be the same again. They were fisherman for life.

What Will You Do?

Some time ago, I was approached by a person asking for a handout as I exited my car at a shopping center. It took me by surprise, but I managed to scrounge up a few small bills. After a lavish display of appreciation, she turned and headed toward another arriving vehicle. As I continued on my way, I noticed an onlooker sitting in a nearby vehicle. The look on his face and the shake of his head expressed his disdain at what he'd just witnessed - calling into question the poor person's genuineness and my gullibility at giving to her. Such occasions may indeed cause us to pause and wonder about the sincerity or actual need of a person appealing to our generosity. We experience it frequently: someone holding a sign at an intersection, solicitations by phone or mail, people approaching us on the street, etc. It is easy to distrust any request if at some time we have been duped by tricksters.

Also, we don't want to violate 2 Thessalonians 3:10: "If any would not work, neither shoulde he eat." It's tempting to use the question, "What would Jesus do?" as a guide, as Charles Sheldon proposed in his 1896 classic In His Steps. There's a lot to be said for using that question as a model, but there is also a limitation as we realize that we cannot do everything Jesus did. He fed thousands miraculously [Matthew 14:13-21; 15: 29-38]. Although we cannot match that, we can all do something [Mark 9:41]. One of the church's earliest benevolence efforts was tainted with wrong motives [Acts 4: 32-5:11], but that didn't stop the willingness to help. - C.M.W.

The Pressbox

By Ricky Mularz, Sports Editor

Both our grandsons made it to the softball tournament in Elba on Friday night, and while Lawson and some of his friends enjoyed visiting the playground, Cannon was content to watch the girls play softball, chew on french fries and cheer with the fans. It was definitely a good night to be a grandparent.

For what it is worth....

 The Elba Lady Tigers clinched the number two seed in next week's area softball tournament with three big wins and in the process improved their regular season area record to 6-2. Elba has a very young team led by a trio of junior high pitchers and only two seniors, but it has grown as the season has progressed and hopefully built the foundation for years to come. Wins and losses aren't always the true gauge of a team, and that is certainly the case with the Lady Tigers as they learn the game and what it takes to be winners in the field.

 The area tournaments are set for next week for all the area teams and it looks like it could be a very interesting week ahead. Down in Kinston, the Lady Bulldogs are heavy favorites to claim the crown and make reservations for a trip to the South Region in Gulf Shores, and while Elba is the number two seed, the Lady Tigers will have to play their best to advance against a field that includes three other teams that will be determined to keep their season alive. Over in Brantley, the powerful Lady Bulldogs are once again heavy favorites to add yet another title to their list of accomplishments, but will have a test from Red Level, which has developed into a solid 1A team in all sports. The tournament in Opp will include New Brockton, and while the Lady Gamecocks have struggled to a rare losing season, they are never a team anyone can take for granted and could have a surprise up their sleeves. Zion Chapel will head over to Luverne for tourney play and the Lady Rebels seem to have one of their best teams in years and should have a solid chance at claiming the tourney title, and appear to be a sure bet to head to region play. Yep, it looks like a fun week ahead for softball fans.

 The opening round of the high school baseball playoffs were held last week and it was a good week to be a Bulldog as both the Kinston Bulldogs and Brantley Bulldogs posted series sweeps. Kinston had to hit the road to meet area champ Wadley, but made short work of the home team as they dominated from start to finish and earned a home series this week against Sweet Water, while Brantley barely broke a sweat in two easy wins over Calhoun and will be back home this week against Millry. If they turn the 'Dogs loose again this week they could be headed for a third round showdown! New Brockton failed to survive after a road trip to Prattville and was the latest public school team to find life hard among the hand-picked private school teams. The Gamecocks had an outstanding season and has no doubt built a solid foundation for years to come.

 In closing... I talked with Elba Tiger head football coach Marc Sieving over the weekend and actually got excited listening to him talk about his upcoming team. Elba lost only two starters from last year's 11-1 squad, and Coach Sieving reported that the veteran line will be bigger, stronger and even more intense this season, while the stable of running backs will be ready to run and the receivers will be long, lean and fast. I know that the season is still over three months away, but spring training starts next week and maybe that will carry us over until the Tigers kick it off in August.
